ADMINISTRATION

THOMAS A. YAWKEY

President

Thomas Austin Yawkey was born on February 21, 1903 . . . in Detroit, and also in what the unimaginative call "the lap of luxury." Heir to two fortunes, in the years of his youth he was permitted a weekly allowance of one dollar.

Indeed, the greatest by far of his inheritances was a deep, abiding love for baseball and for fair play . . . both of which, as well as a good deal of his fortune, were passed on to him by his uncle and foster-father, William Hoover Yawkey, owner of the Detroit Tigers early in this century.

The incomparable good taste of the Red Sox operation during Tom Yawkey's ownership, in an era when a disturbing carnival atmosphere has furtively crept into the sport, is a crystal-clear reflection of the greater of these inheritances. He has at all times been a zealous protector of baseball's fundamental principles.

General Manager

Stanley Raymond (Bucky) Harris was named the new General Manager of the Red Sox, January 15, 1959, by Owner Tom Yawkey, taking over the duties of his office on the official elevation of his predecessor, Joe Cronin, to the American League presidency on February 1.

Since October of 1956, Harris has served as special assistant to Yawkey and Cronin, contributing greatly to the functioning of the Red Sox organization.

Actually, this appointment marked a homecoming to Boston for Bucky Harris, one of the most famous and most popular personalities in Baseball. He had served as field manager for the Red Sox under the ownership of Tom Yawkey in 1934.

MANAGER

Under Mike Higgins' skilled handling, the Red Sox finished third in the American League standings last season, the highest spot achieved since the 1951 campaign. In the two previous years, Mike directed the Red Sox into fourth place, gaining unanimous manager of the year recognition for his achievement in 1955, his first year back in Boston.

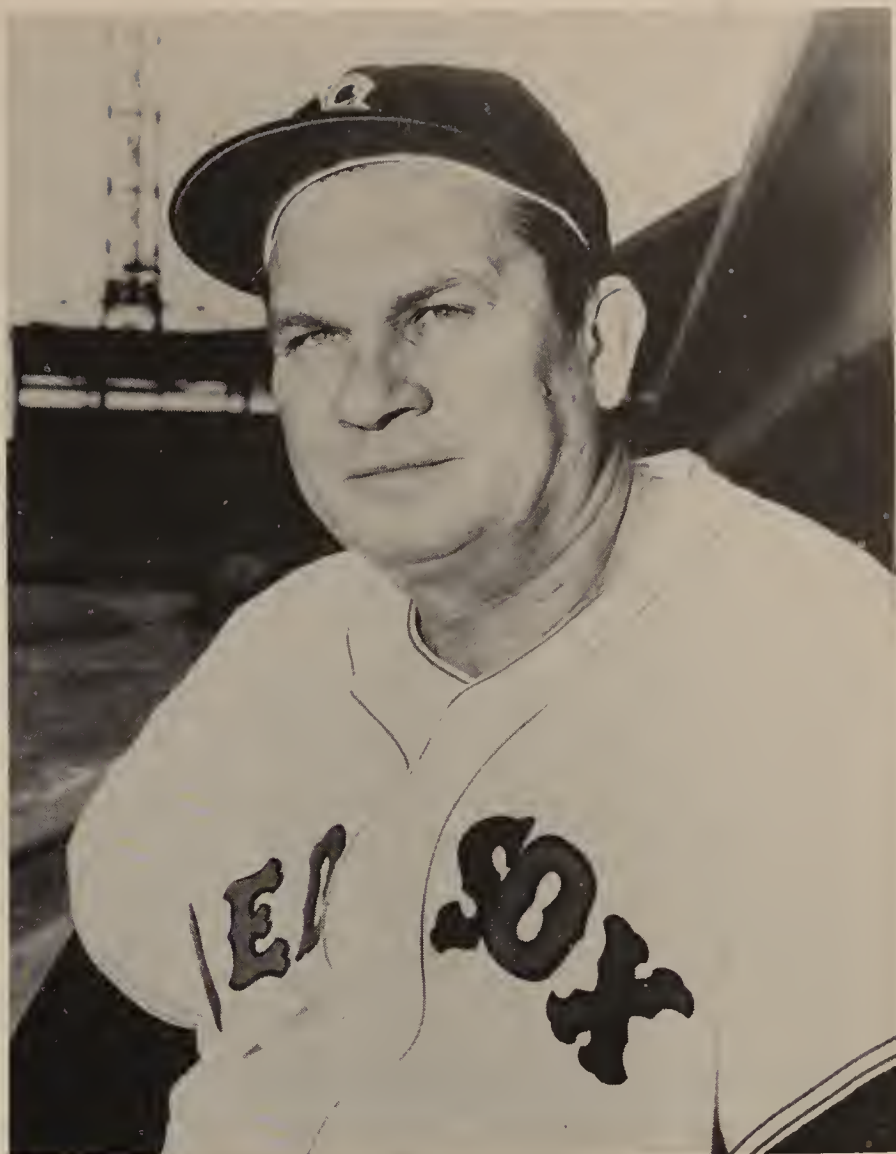

Long before that, Higgins had thrilled Red Sox fans as a third baseman during his playing days. He saw two terms of service in Boston, the first in 1937 and 1938. He returned to the fold in time to play a prominent part in the Red Sox' pennant victory in 1946.

After that, Mike called it quits as a major league player, but his potential of leadership was rewarded with a position in the Red Sox minor league system. Starting out with the Class B club at Roanoke, Va., in 1947, Manager Higgins rose through the ranks, until he led the Triple-A Louisville team to the Little World Series championship in 1954.

It was on to Boston and back to the big leagues for Mike Higgins then.

The popular skipper was born at Red Oak, Texas, May 27, 1909. One of a family of famed athletes, he was graduated from the University of Texas in 1930, signing on graduation with the Philadelphia Athletics. Mike also saw service with the Detroit Tigers between his two terms as the hot corner guardian at Fenway Park, taking time out in 1945 for service in the Navy during World War II.

Mike makes his off-season home in Dallas, but, during the summer months, his wife (the former Hazen French) and daughters, Diane and Elizabeth, are numbered among the Red Sox' and the Skipper's most rabid rooters at Fenway Park.

Cactus Circuit Hosts

Jensen Takes A Cut Warming Up Before A Game

Baseball fans in Arizona this year are enjoying the rare opportunity to view both of Baseball's "Most Valuable Players" for 1958.

The double bonus treat for Cactus League followers came about when Boston's Jackie Jensen and the Cub's Ernie Banks ran off with the balloting in their respective leagues.

Not since 1954, when Willie Mays (and he's still in these here parts, podnuh) won the NL's award, has a MVP performed in the Valley.

Jensen, who led the league in runs-batted-in with 122, and was fifth in home runs with 35, earned 223 votes to Yankee Bob Turley's 191, a decisive margin. It was the first time in the past five years a Yankee player failed to gain the coveted berth.

The former All-American at California is no stranger to Arizona climes, training here in 1951 when a member of the Yankees.

National League scribes made Banks an easy winner on his great 1958 performance. Leading the league in practically every department, including autographs, Banks totalled 47 home runs, tops for both leagues, as was his 129 RBI's and 379 total bases. His .614 slugging percentage led the National League.

Fortunately for local sun-worshippers, Jensen and Banks are hustling hard workers who work out long and hard during spring training sessions. It appears that Arizona fans will make the best of their chance to view 1958's most exciting performers.

Groundskeeper Orlando Corrales Makes Hasty Sign Switch

Scottsdale, winter nest for the Baltimore Orioles for the past three years, received a surprise jolt last June with the announcement that Baltimore would train in (if you'll pardon the expression) Florida this season.

However, local boosters and other members of the Cactus Baseball League invited the colorful Boston Red Sox to abandon their 25-year training association with Sarasota, Florida and come to the West's Most Western (and fastest growing) Town.

New England newspaper scribes were momentarily "shook" by the news. "Where's Scottsdale?" one writer quipped. "and for that matter, Arizona?" . . . "A quaint little desert outpost with sophisticated stores and prices to match." said another.

Not completely sold on these views, some came west for a first-hand look at the new Red Sox site. Although one group visited during a 100-degree plus July week, they returned to Boston singing the praises of Scottsdale and the Valley in general.

Press releases from Boston indicate a record number of journalists are here this spring. We trust they will like Scottsdale and enjoy their stay here in the west.

The transfer of the New York Giants to San Francisco has occasioned a major change in the Red Sox farm system

In return for the San Francisco territory, the Red Sox received as partial payment the franchise and territory of the Minneapolis club of the American Association, and thus the Boston organization will direct the destinies of the famous Millers, an outstanding team in what has long been known as an outstanding baseball city.

The entire farm organization is under the direction of John Murphy, one of the game's great all-time relief pitchers in his playing days, who has instituted additional changes for 1958 in keeping the Red Sox program marching steadily along the path of progress.

The same may be said for the staff of 25 Red Sox scouts, who continually comb the country in search of top talent, and who also stand ever ready to impart instruction and advice to help these young hopefuls reach their goal with the Red Sox.

All of these men are well versed in the Red Sox system, and have the ability to pass along the instruction so necessary for advancement in baseball today.

The very best of instruction is also assured these Boston-bound ball players, since top men of the game's teaching trade are assigned the managerial tasks on these farm clubs.

FRANK

Born: February 28, 1930, Bronx, N. Y. Ht.: 5' 10"; Wt.: 180 lbs. Brown eyes; Black hair. Bats and Throws: Right. Home: Oneonta, N. Y.

Elected by fellow players as American League All Star third baseman; second season in row he held that honor, having been named by Manager Casey Stengel to 1957 Dream Game team. Enjoyed another banner year in 1958 after being named Sophomore of the Year 1957; he was ruled ineligible for rookie honors because of previous brief service with Red Sox. Among 1958 feats:—led club in hits, games played and at bats; second on Red Sox only to league-leader Jackie Jensen in runs batted in; won unanimous recognition as outstanding major league fielding third baseman. Batted .341 at Fenway Park. Signed in 1948 following graduation from Samuel Gompers High, Bronx. Won All Star honors in 1948 in the Can.-Am. League and in 1955 in American Association. An Army veteran. Bow and arrow hunting is his hobby. Alternated his winter residence between Oneonta, N. Y., and Needham, Mass., serving Greater Boston tire company as vice president. Married and has a son.

The past four years have witnessed a considerable rekindling of interest in the old European-style coffee house here in the United States. A multitude of variations on the theme of the Italian and Viennese coffee houses have sprung up in many of our cosmopolitan cities, and Portofino's is the first one in Arizona.
